Sharah Tefilla Sexton Reaches 75, Wife Gets Citizenship Papers; Celebration Is Held

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Glogos, 820 South Capitol avenue, officers of the Congregation Sarah Tefilla gathered at his home Thursday evening to celebrate a double event. Mr. Glogos reached 75 Sunday and Mrs. Glogos received her final citizenship papers Wednesday.

Mr. Glogos, who has been sexton of Congregation Sarah Tefilla for the past seventeen years, came to this country in 1920 from Bialystok, Poland, which prior to World War I was in Russian territory.

As a youth he served in the Russian Grenadiers and was stationed in Moscow, a distinguished honor for those selected for this special duty.

The Glogoses were married in 1891 and will celebrate their golden wedding in August of next year. Mr. and Mrs. Glogos have three sons and a daughter, all married: Philip Glogos of Alexandria, Ind.; William Glogos of Gas City, Ind.; Abe Glogos of Dunkirk, Ind., and Mrs. Sam Segal of Converse, Ind. Two grandsons, Edgar Segal, who won many academic honors while at Manual Training High School, and Bob Glogos are attending Indiana University.

Congregation Sarah Tefilla passed a resolution at its monthly meeting last Sunday commending Mr. Glogos for his faithful service.

The election of Sam Mantel to the highest office in the district was uneventful. Isidore Feibleman, himself a past president, nominated Mr. Mantel, and the election was unanimous. Mrs. Anna Fishbein, wife of Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Journal, and brother of Mr. Mantel, attended the installation banquet.

Few Heed Plea As Evacuation Plans For Palestine Set

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency JERUSALEM—The United States Government has advised Americans to leave the Near East.

Only a few of the 8,500 American citizens in Palestine—about 7,000 of whom are Jews—have decided to return home because of Washington's advice.

Blackouts Country-wide

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency JERUSALEM—A permanent country-wide blackout from 9 p. m. to 4 a. m. began Tuesday. In addition, wartime curtailment of rail traffic was instituted. The Hadassah luncheon committee started preparations to accommodate and feed prospective refugees from all over the country.

Needy Families Leaving

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency JERUSALEM—With Italy's imminent entry into the war threatening to extend hostilities to the Mediterranean, the British administration in Palestine has completed plans for evacuation of civilian populations from the coastal cities of Haifa and Tel Aviv, if it becomes necessary. In Haifa, the authorities are assisting needy families willing to leave immediately.

Palestine's war problems fall into three principal categories—supplies, defense and air raid precautions.

The first problem is difficult because the Holy Land is far from self-sufficient in many commodities. The public for some months has been industriously accumulating non-perishable food supplies. Merchant cooperatives have been making stocks of other commodities. The Palestine Government exercises full control over stocks of necessary commodities.

The question of military defense is, of course, entirely in the hands of the British military command. Haifa, a British naval base, and terminus of the pipelines from the Mosul oil fields, is a key point in defense.

Sandbag Public Buildings

The military authorities have taken all precautions. Public buildings have been sandbagged. Certain sections have been occupied by troops. Civilians are permitted entrance to certain key points only when in possession of special permits. Blackout is in effect in Haifa nightly from 11 o'clock.

A. R. P. plans generally had not advanced beyond the paper stage. Plans for construction of public A. R. P. shelters were adopted by the Haifa and Tel Aviv municipalities before the outbreak of the war.

In Jerusalem a chief concern is the maintenance of water and food supplies. The Jerusalem water (Continued on page 7)

Washington Avenue Temple — A History

In political life, Philip W. Frey was elected prosecuting attorney for the First Judicial District in 1882, when he was but 25 years of age, and at the conclusion of his term he was re-elected. Isidore Kahn was county attorney in 1919-20-21 and Phil Loewenthal served in the legislature.

The first Jew to serve in the city council was Henry Gumberts Sr., in 1872, and he was twice re-elected. Others who served in the city council were Jacob Eichel, August Brentano (two years) and Aaron Weil.

August Brentano was chairman of the Democratic central committee of Vanderburgh county in 1884, leading a successful campaign for his party. When the Evansville Business Men's Association was formed in 1887 (a forerunner to the Chamber of Commerce), he was its first secretary. Dr. William Ehrich was president of the board of health, 1930 to 1935. Harry Loewenthal was a member of the board of safety, 1930-1935.

THE early members were active in everything that interested the general community. Julius Kahn and S. I. Loewenstein were among the organizers and charter members Lessing Lodge No. 464, F. and A. M., Mr. Loewenstein being the first senior warden, and, in 1885, being elected master of the lodge.

Jacob Eichel inaugurated the movement for the first electric light plant as well as for the first brick streets and the first tobacco warehouse.

The first cemetery was located at Mulberry near Fifth street. This was abandoned and all graves moved to the present site of the Rose Hill cemetery in 1879, Rabbi Falk Vidaver officiating at the dedication. It is beautifully situated and extremely well maintained.

In 1902 the congregation began to feel the need of a new building. A committee visited Indianapolis, St. Louis and Peoria to inspect the temples and recommended that the Peoria style of architecture be adopted.

A site at Sixth and Washington was purchased at a cost of $3,385 and the old building was sold to the board of education for $10,000. Bids were opened May 25, 1903, and a contract was awarded for building at a cost of over $35,000.

When in 1923 a bequest of $5,000 was received from Mrs. Fannie Kronenberger, a movement was initiated for the enlargement of the temple's school facilities. With the aid of the Sisterhood, the Temple House was completed in December, 1925.

On the very night of these dedication exercises, fire broke out in the temple, completely destroying it. Immediate measures were taken to rebuild the present structure, outstanding in many way for its architectural distinction and beauty.

This is the story of Congregation B'nai Israel and to some extent the story of the Jews in Evansville. It is the story of a community of fine traditions, of constructive pride and substantial achievement. With a history of more than a century of experience, it looks to the future for opportunities of greater service to Judaism and mankind.

YOU SHOULD KNOW

So thoroughly entrenched is the Nazi Fifth Column in some of the Latin American countries, we hear, that their diplomatic and commercial representatives here include quite a number of people who are engaged in building up a similar Fifth Wheel here. . . . It's probably just wishful thinking, but the trans-Atlantic grapevine reports that even Hitler's army of occupation in Poland is growing disgusted with the barbaric measures that the soldiers are compelled by the authorities to take against the people of the conquered territory. . . . "No doubt," gags a wag, "Herr Goebbels is now forging ahead on documents to prove that the Low Countries were planning to invade Germany." . . . One would think that the Nazis would have other things on their mind at the moment, but even a Blitzkrieg didn't stop them from wiring Rachel L. Field, author of "All This and Heaven Too," to tell her that her Biblical first name would have to be changed for the German edition of the book. . . . Miss Field's emphatic reply is the reason why there won't be a German edition.

Forum lecture directors please take notice that Elias Newman, art director of the Palestine Pavilion at the Fair, will go on a cross-continent lecture tour after the close of the Fair season. . . . His subject will be the renaissance of art, architecture and the theatre in Palestine, and his lectures will be illustrated with lantern slides of some of the exhibits that make the art and theatre displays of the Pavilion so fascinating.

LITERARY DEPARTMENT

"The Community of the Future," the new book by Dr. Emanuel Lasker, who held the world's chess championship for decades, will be out by the time you read this. . . . It has nothing to do with chess, but discusses some very pressing problems of mass education. . . . It's a shame that the Union of American Hebrew Congregations can't see its way clear to continuing the publication of Young Israel, the children's magazine that Elsa Wehl has been editing so ably for many years. . . . Miss Wehl—who, you will remember, co-authored with Lewis Browne a biographical best-seller of some years ago, "That Man Heine"—will devote herself to her own literary work from now on.

SCREEN HIGHLIGHTS

If you remember that marvelous scene in the Paul Ehrlich film in which Edward G. Potatoes

It is brought to me that in a certain city a certain brand of potatoes is sold. The fact is, though, that the article in question is not potatoes or anything else that is grown. It is, indeed, a certain manufactured foodstuff and very good to the taste.

But, for obvious reasons, I shall call it potatoes.

Now these potatoes are grown and sold by a corporation of Jewish people. They have a big industry which gives employment to many of the people of their city. They call it, let us say, The Spud Potato Corporation.

Their potatoes are sold all over town. One of their dealers tells me the story:

The other day he was called up by a woman: She desired some potatoes sent over to her house and what kind of potatoes did he handle.

"Spud potatoes," the dealer replied.

"Oh," she exclaimed, "those are the Jew potatoes. I don't want them."

The dealer knew very well there is no racial distinction among potatoes. He knew only good potatoes and bad potatoes. He thought that between people it should be as among potatoes; they should be judged only by their characters. . . . "Jew potatoes!" he snorted derisively.

He was in the midst of these meditations when a Negro entered his store.

"I want a peck of potatoes," he said. "What kind have you?"

"We handle only the best," the dealer replied. "Spud potatoes."

"Them's the Jew potatoes," the man said. "I don't want 'em."

The dealer was shocked to come upon the two similar incidents within an hour. The matter suggested something rather widespread. . . . Between the

Polish Officials Continue To Seek Jewish Emigration

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

LONDON—Deep dismay and resentment has been caused in Jewish quarters by the publication of a booklet by M. K. Gluchowski, secretary of the Polish National Council in America, which declares that "at least 1,000,000 Jews must emigrate from Poland," and only when "the percentage of Jews in Poland is reduced to at least one-third of the present number will the Jewish problem be solved, or rather cease to exist."

It is pointed out that Gluchowski is also director of the Polish Information Bureau, cooperating closely with the Paris official department of the same name.

Helpers in the belly of Hitler's Trojan horse.

The dealer couldn't think lightly of the matter merely because it had to do only with "Jew potatoes." Events in the world were too dreadful for him to consider any manifestation of Hitler lightly.

Hadn't Hitler started to conquer Germany in just this way? Hadn't he brought Germans to unite behind him in hatred for Jews? After he had them united on this it was easier to lead them toward his goals—the totalitarian state, the end of liberty, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland and the current drive against civilization. He took them for a ride on the Trojan horse of anti-Semitism.

The dealer was troubled for America. He had seen and heard of incidents besides the potatoes. In the want ad columns he had read that "Gentiles only" were wanted for jobs. He had heard of skilled youths being turned away from jobs merely because they were Jews. He didn't mind that Jews weren't wanted in some of the apartment houses and hotels. That was an old story and he wasn't one to quarrel with social discriminations; he himself made social discriminations.

But to boycott Jews in business and Jews in industry and Jews seeking a livelihood looked like the technique of Hitler in all the places in which he has marched on his conquering stride.

Anti-Semitism seemed to have become much more than a pain of Jews. Didn't it have to do essentially with the safety of America itself?

Wasn't it the first blow at democracy itself? We had started to arm in dread of Hitler, but hadn't Hitler already invaded the hearts of fellow-citizens? In this single instance he had taken in a lot of territory—from the height of the lady's heart in the middle-class suburb to the humble abode of the Negro. It was like one of those quick, deep thrusts through Belgium and France.

The dealer felt it was no more hysterical fancy of his that associated such incidents as these to the remote Nazis separated from America by the breadth of an ocean. There were no more distances of space or time. Only the day before on his radio he had heard the hideous sound of an air raid alarm in Paris. Ideas were flying quicker than any wind; he had become as swift as an electrical impulse.

This voice of the Negro and the voice of the lady were keyed to the same note that Hitler had

Church Uses Temple, Congregation Praised

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
COLUMBUS, Ohio—When the first Methodist Church was damaged recently by fire, the congregation held its Sunday morning services in the nearby Bryden Road Temple at the invitation of Rabbi Samuel M. Gup. The Ohio State Journal editorially praised "this neighborliness, this willingness to share, this spirit that regards men and women of another faith as real friends and co-workers."

CULINARY NOTE

"I hope," remarked Aleph (Poet) Katz when Lieutenant-General John Greer Dill was appointed commander of the British Expeditionary Forces in France, "that Dill will pickle those Nazis." . . . But the pickling process seems to have gone sour somewhere along the line. . . . Or is it a case of too much Dilly-dallying—not by the heroic Allied troops, but by a fifth-column-riddled government back home that failed to put the Dill in the pickle barrel at the proper time.

* * * *

MAZELTOV NOTE

Argentine newspapers recently carried an item about the first Jewish civil pilot to win his license in that South American republic. . . . His name is Reuben Mazel. . . . Here's hoping he never loses it.

* * * *

TRUE STORY

This story goes back to 1926 B. B. (before blitzkrieg). . . . When Henry Ittelson, the financier, was visiting in Berlin. . . . One day he was asked if he were related to Professor Gregor Ittelson, the noted scientist. . . . The financier was interested and made a pilgrimage to the scientist's home. . . . After climbing five flights of stairs to his home, the financier rapped on the door. . . . Only to be told in a gruff voice to go away. . . . The aging scientist, it seemed, was fearful of gangsters and suspected all strangers. . . . Finally, the financier persuaded him to open the door and he was admitted. . . . After having found out that they actually were related, distantly, and after a pleasant conversation, the financier asked the scientist whether there wasn't something he could do for him. . . . At first the scientist refused, but when H. I. insisted, he expressed a desire to attend a certain scientific congress that was scheduled to be held that year in Philadelphia. . . . H. I. immediately made out a check for $5,000 and handed it to the scientist and departed. . . . Weeks later, he decided to pay his relative another visit. . . . He climbed the five flights leading to his apartment, rapped as before, but this time there was no reply. . . . He inquired of the house superintendent. . . . Who informed him that Professor Ittelson had died several weeks before. . . . Of a heart attack induced by shock.

* * * *

FIFTH COLUMN

If the hysteria about fifth column goes to the same lengths that the anti-German hysteria went to during the last war, we can look for developments such as this. . . . Suspicion or elimination of anything and everything involving the word or concept "fifth." . . . For example. . . . No more fifth grade in school. . . . A ban on fifth innings in baseball games. . . . The expression "fifth wheel to a wagon" will take on new odium. . . . Fifth symphonies will be barred from concerts. . . . And it may even be that fifth will be removed from the calendar. . . . Patriotic drinkers of Scotch whisky will certainly stop buying it in fifths. . . . And the British, come to think of it, ought to discontinue five o'clock tea. . . . Luckily, Independence Day is the Fourth of July and not the fifth, or something would have to be done about it.

* * * *

MISH-MASH

Welcome visitor to the J. T. A. office last week was H. L. Meites of Chicago. Here in connection with an interesting mission involving the Jewish Palestine Pavilion at the World's Fair, he took some time off to make that fascinating round-Manhattan boat trip. . . . Congrats to Walter Winchell on his daily paragraph tabbed "The Winchell Column vs. The Fifth Column." Also on his story of the kindly Jewish druggist in mid-Manhattan, who, beloved by all who knew him, tried unsuccessfully to win over an anti-Semite who made a practice of entering his store daily and shouting "Jew" at him. Despairing, at last, the druggist one day had the anti-Semite ejected. And himself was arrested and jailed pending bail on charges of assault. Released, the druggist dropped dead of a heart attack in his lawyer's office. The anti-Semite finally wound up in the Bellevue psychopathic ward. . . . Lindbergh is no longer the Lone Eagle to W. W. He is now the Lone Ostrich.

McWilliams Sees Culture In Nazis

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK—Joseph E. McWilliams, head of the Christian Mobilizers and "American Destiny Party" candidate for Congress in Yorkville, told a campaign meeting this week: "Hitler will bring culture and humanity into full bloom in the world." McWilliams' platform is to bring the Hitler way of life to America.

Mrs. Goodman Urges Graduation Gifts For Youth Aliyah

Once again Youth Aliyah has made an appeal to relatives and friends of young people who will be confirmed or graduated during the next few days to make their graduation gifts in the form of contributions to a fund which will help rescue European Jewish children and train them for a productive life in Palestine, it was announced by Mrs. Jack A. Goodman, member of the national committee of the organization.

"This is the third year in which we of Youth Aliyah are pointing out to friends and relatives of the young people who are fortunate enough to be enjoying the privilege of having their secular and religious education in this free America culminate in graduation and confirmation, that the finest gifts which they can be given are donations in their names to the Youth Aliyah fund," Mrs. Goodman stated. "Many people have said to me that they did not know what to give their young friends, because these youths have everything they could possibly need; whereas, all over Europe children of the same age are not only going without luxuries of this kind but are actually in physical want. It is no more than fitting that the gifts to those who have everything should be in the form of a donation to those who have nothing."

It is very easy to make a gift in this form: just mail the money to Mrs. Goodman together with the name and address of the young person in whose name the gift is made. The Youth Aliyah Committee will immediately mail a beautiful gift card to the graduate or confirmant. Any amount is welcome, from a few cents on up, and it is important to note that the amount of the donation is not stated on the card.

It was also pointed out that gifts in this form have been and are very popular for birthdays, anniversaries, and other events.

supply comes from the Ras-el-Ain wells, some 60 kilometers from Jerusalem. Enemy air activity over Palestine might well destroy or so damage the water system as to leave Jerusalem without water.

The Jewish community organization in Jerusalem consequently has urged the Palestine administration to accumulate water supplies in Jerusalem reservoirs and also to repair the water supply from the famous Solomon Pools, some 8 kilometers from Jerusalem, which for centuries has been the city's main source of water. The Jewish community also appealed to all householders in Jerusalem possessing water tanks to keep them filled for emergency.

Youth Aliyah has gone on without stopping and will continue to do so. Every time $360 is raised it provides the finances necessary for the schooling and subsistence of one child for the regulation two-year period required in Palestine, after which he or she is equipped and ready to follow a useful career in the work of his or her choice. There is no dearth of visas, and the number of children who will be sent depends entirely on the thoughtfulness of people here who use this as well as every other opportunity to make contributions to the fund, it was said.

spread of false rumors, the government has banned radios from all cafes, shops, automobiles and other places accessible to the public, except by special permit from the High Commissioner's office.

Palestine police are still arresting Germans, including women, in the now nearly completed drive to eliminate all possible fifth column elements in the country. Those arrested are interned in large camps outside the principal cities.

The Editor's Chair.

It seems that there really is a feeling in the community that the Federation should be democratized. Without exaggeration, more people have told me that they agree with my stand on this one question, than on any other single project. Let me say here, once and for all, that I feel that Indianapolis has been especially fortunate in the men who have held the helm of leadership (I've said this many times before in print), so that this drive for a democratic set-up in the community definitely is not a personal attack on anyone. In fact, the possibility that heretofore the community has not been ready, was not mature enough for a democratic ruling authority, has more than a grain of truth.

If enough people want it, the Federation will on its own account institute changes along such lines as have been adopted already in more than 40 other communities. Every organization will elect a member to the general federation (or council, if you will) according to its membership, not to exceed three from any group, no matter how large. No one person may represent more than one organization, and although there must necessarily be duplication because many people belong to more than one organization, still every organization knows that its wishes in any decision are being voiced in the community council. The general representatives will then elect an executive body who will meet more often and transact most of the business, reporting back to the general body its actions for approval. Elections will be held yearly, and there will be no appointees either to the general council or the executive for any reason.

This plan, or one along similar lines, has been discussed within the Federation for several years, but there was not the backing of the community. There was not, except in a small group, any feeling in the community that there should be a change in method of government. Today I believe that the entire community is alive to the situation.

The history of the Washington Avenue Temple of Evansville, which is being concluded in this issue, was compiled by Rabbi Milton Greenwald, and was prepared for the eightieth anniversary celebration of the congregation in 1937.

J. C. C. A. Election Healthy

THE young leadership in the Indianapolis Jewish Community can find no complaint in the election of officers this week of the Jewish Community Center Association. With Theodore Dann re-named president, and with the three other officers in the persons of Allan Kahn, Mrs. Marjorie Fisher Kahn and Samuel Kroot, the list is so young that it is difficult to differentiate the group almost from a list of Confirmands. But in placing responsibilities in the hands of young men, the older leadership of the community is securing for itself the assurance that there will be younger men to carry on when they retire.

What the J. C. C. A. has done has been followed by almost every other organization, as witness the past few presidents of the Indianapolis Lodge of B'nai B'rith—Richard Efrogymson, Ed Cohn, Jack Kammins, and the coming year, Max Farb. It is a healthy procedure.

Campaign Failures Unanalyzed

STILL unanalyzed, the factors that have prevented Jewish welfare funds from raising their 1940 quotas throughout the nation are operating in New York City, too, where Governor Herbert Lehman has called a meeting for June 10 to examine the status of the campaign in that city.

Commenting on Governor Lehman's call, The New Palestine editorializes: "With but few exceptions, however, those who should have issued a challenge to the compassion and generosity of American Jewry have contented themselves with the same standard of giving as in 1939. What is even more alarming is that all too many of those who are in a position to understand the needs of the hour have been niggardly and evasive, giving less rather than more. An analysis of the gifts of some fifty leading contributors in the New York City United Jewish Appeal discloses a sharp ratio of decrease as compared with 1939."

Writer Can't Understand Particular Jewish Attitude

WRITING in the Louisville Courier Journal of last Sunday, Mrs. Ralph Trosper throws out the perplexity, "Just why Jewish students should fail to realize what the Nazi regime has meant to all intellectual liberalism, I fail to see."

Mrs. Trosper's failure to see is not unique. Most non-Jews cannot understand the Jew because they make the inevitable mistake of grouping them all together. In most cases, the mistake falls into that class where Jews are branded as all capitalistic or all communistic, all radical or all conservative, but in the particular instance in question, the writer is concerned with University of Louisville Jewish students, one of whom is editor of the university newspaper, who ostensibly are fighting against a pro-Ally movement in the city.

Mrs. Trosper cannot understand how a Jew could be aligned even in the slightest way with any viewpoint which could be construed as favoring the Nazis. Of course, the editor was not favoring the Nazis as such, but he took his stand on principle, and wherever in history anywhere could you find a people or individuals to whom principles meant more than to Jews and to whom death meant less when the matter of principle was involved.

Current Comment

Rabbis Urging Aid for Allies, Rabbi Louis I. Newman Points Out—The "Herald Tribune" last week carried a headline quoting Rabbi Nathan Stern as "regretting" the statement of Churchill that he could promise to Britain in the emergency only "blood and toil, tears and sweat." The headline was unfortunate, for the reader who went further saw that Rabbi Stern wished Churchill to stress the righteousness of the Allied cause. And now we read in "Time" that Rabbi Louis L. Mann of Temple Sinai, Chicago, wishes all possible aid to the Allies short of war. With Bishop Waldorf, Rabbi Mann and believed staunchly in the Johnson act, thought United States defense ample. But last week, they strongly urged all credit to the Allies, all speed in building United States defense. What have the "self-defense" organizations which have been preaching ultra-caution on the part of the rabbis to say regarding these utterances?

Many persons feel that Lindbergh's reference to the "small minority . . . who control much of the machinery of influence and propaganda" and who "seize every opportunity to push closer to the edge" was directed against the Jews, but there is no certainty of this. Jews have the duty now to do their utmost to speak and act on behalf of American interests and to aid if they can in bringing about the victory of the Allies.

The Jewish Transcript Editor Lays Down the Law to Publicity-Seeking Group—He came in with blood in his eye. He was the president of an organization and wanted to know why the article sent in by the publicity chairman had not been printed in full. We pulled the original script out of the waste basket and pointed out three paragraphs which were mere fulsome compliments to members. We refuse to permit writers no matter what organization they represent to use our columns for such purposes. We print the news—that's all. And while we are on the subject, for the last time we say that this organization material must be type-written on one side only and in the office by Tuesday noon of each week. We shall rigidly enforce these rules.

Ideal Synagogue Visualized by Louis J. Moss, National President of the United Synagogue of America—All members shall have equal welcome and none shall enjoy greater rights than the other. Pews with rights of ownership, or possessory rights through hiring, are not to be permitted. Each communicant is to occupy the first available seat as he enters the synagogue.

Honors in the course of the services are to be bestowed among the communicants without regard to the material support that may come from them. The management of the congregation is to reside in its membership, acting through committees representative of the congregation. The ritual is to be consonant with the high standards emblematic of the United Synagogue, and the rabbi shall have an untrammelled pulpit, free from any dictation or influence by any of its officers or directors. The administration, by word or deed, shall undertake and conduct every activity solely from the viewpoint of its ethical significance, and how it will affect the social needs of the community.

PAIN TALK

struck far back when he set out to conquer Germany.

In all these seven years only Jews had been frightened by such voices. Wasn't this now something for America to fear? America was girding and seeking out Trojan horses and the fifth column of Nazim, Fascism and Communism.

Wasn't this anti-Semitism the Trojan horse that was being sought everywhere? Who could mistake it?

He had been hearing a summons to unity in America. Could there be unity when anti-Semitism was going about to divide Americans one against the other by hate and fear? To foment disunity had been everywhere the function of fifth columns and anti-Semitism had been the instrument.

Yes, anti-Semitism had become a problem of America having to do with the safety of everything that America was arming to guard.

The dealer thought these meditations which had sprung out of some potatoes ought somehow be given to the mind of America which is in fear of Hitler without being aware that his Trojan horse (which America is so jealously hunting) has been nakedly visible for quite a while.
